

I strongly oppose the Consumer Bankers Association's attempt to circumvent the protection provided to me by my state (Indiana). I do not want my telephone to be used against me by marketers, whether or not the marketers claim to have a business relationship with me. Marketers abuse exceptions like the one the CBA seeks. If they get what they seek, we will start getting unwanted calls from marketers we have never heard of before, claiming some dubious relationship with a business we once might have patronized. I have suffered this sort of dishonesty and abuse of regulations before (it was a credit card company). I do not want to suffer it again from anybody else. Please do not allow the CBA to weaken the protection that I receive from my state.
